How to Leverage Converged Infrastructure

By K.C. Choi

Vice President, Americas Solutions Architecture, Cloud and Total Customer Experience at Hewlett Packard

Thursday, October 17, 2013

Networking @ 6:00 pm Roundtable @ 6:30 pm • Dinner/ Program @ 7:00 to 9:00pm

We've asked Mr. Choi to give us an update on what's happening with convergence and what smart IT executives should know as we look to 2014. In just a few short years, the market for converged infrastructure has grown to nearly $4 billion a year, according to the Technology Business Research's July 31, 2013 report. As Vice President, Americas Solutions Architecture, Cloud and Total Customer Experience at Hewlett Packard, Mr. Choi oversees nearly 1,000 solutions architects who are assisting customers with converged infrastructure and hybrid cloud deployments.

Executive Biography

KC Choi's team provides strategic technology infrastructure design and architecture advisory services for HP's corporate, enterprise and government customers in the US, Canada and Latin America. His team of 700 technology professionals supports sales in excess of $12 Billion across the Americas region. KC has been with HP for 18 years in various technical and management roles including leading the Oracle/Compaq business unit for 3 years. He also leads the Americas HP-IT Transformation teams in transferring HP-IT best practices and methods in the service of similar customer initiatives.

Previously, KC served as VP & Chief Technology Officer for SeniorCo Inc. (Senior.com) which is now wholly owned by United HealthCare. KC has also held technical and sales positions with IBM Corporation and NCR. At NCR, KC has held engineering and sales and positions in the retail and financial systems business units. KC graduated from the University of California, Irvine with a double major: Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering and Bachelor of Arts in Economics.

KC guest lectures regularly at Loyola Marymount University's MBA program on various IT topics as well as international conferences.
